BOLD HOLDUP IS FOLLOWED BY EXCITING CHASE AND GUN PLAY

Highwaymen Take $53.25 From Fredericktown Italian and Then Are Chased

TWO OF THE PARTY CAUGHT

Maintain That Quartet Met in Charleroi and Started out to Gain Notiriety—Two Escape by Fleeing Into Woods Near Beallsville.

A bold holdup in the Fredericktown vicinity, the exciting chase and the battle that followed together with the fact that two of the criminals concerned escaped their pursuers and fled in this direction has stirred the people of Beallsville and vicinity to a high state of excitement. Little trace of the two members of the original quartet has been found although the state police stationed at Monongahela and other places are on the job together with the police of the towns hereabouts.

Tony Traveska an Italian employed at Vesta No. 5 near Fredericktown, was held up and robbed early Wednesday morning by four Italians while returning to his home with a bucket of water. The holdup men took $53.25, the total amount he had with him. They then hurried away while Traveska went to Fredericktown to tell of the robbery.

As the men had started in the general direction of Beallsville, Thomas E. White, policeman at Bentleyville, was notified and started on the hunt of the four Italians. Coming toward Beallsville he met H. H. Dawson and Isaac N. Young and persuaded them to go with him on the chase. Proceeding in an automobile the three men found that the bandits had taken the road to Marianna instead of the one to Beallsville.

They started on this clue and near the old stone mill near the home of Joseph Berkhimer, the four Italians were sighted. They were commanded by White to stop but only moved faster. Young then pulled a gun and shot twiceinto the road bank. One of the Italians stopped and opened fire while the three men in the car ducked and dodged to elude the flying bullets which were not aimed at the road bank.

Just at this time Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hill of Deemston were leaving the Berkhimer home. Several of the many bullets that were discharged missed them narrowly.

The Italians then sought safety in flight and ran toward the home of Winnett McCarty. They jumped into his cornfield and were hid from view amid the tall stalks. In the meantime the pursuers obtained a shotgun at the McCarty home and notified the police at Marianna. After waiting a short time for the men to come from the cornfield White and Young entered the corn field to hunt them while Dawson scouted around the margin to await the coming of the criminals.

Two of the bandits were caught in the cornfield and the other two escaped over the hill and into the woods. One of the men said his home was in Cleveland and his name Tony Christella. He said that the four of them had met in Charleroi and had been on their way to Wheeling.

Tony said also that the two men who escaped had the money. The other captured man could not speak English. Both men were taken to Fredericktown.

The bandits who escaped started in the direction of Beallsville and terror reigns among the people of the district.

FIRE ESCAPES MUST BE BUILT

Owners of Several Buildings In This Vicinity Receive Instructions

FACTORY INSPECTOR HERE

Deputy Factory Inspector James R. Patterson of Beaver Falls was in Charleroi Tuesday and Wednesday making inspections of buildings and working conditions.

Mr. Patterson at the present time is giving special attention to the matter of fire escapes. He has found a number of buildings locally which need them and in every case has left written instructions with the owners to have them constructed.

Little news of an unusual nature was given out by Mr. Patterson. Generally conditions are good in his district he stated.

TWO DEPARTMENTS CALLED OUT WHEN FIRE STARTS

Both the North Charleroi and the Charleroi fire departments were called out when a fire started at the home of R. H. Campbell in North Charleroi Wednesday evening about 9 o'clock. A bed became inflamed from some cause resulting in much smoke. Alarms were hurriedly sounded. The Charleroi fire truck was part way up the hill at North Charleroi before it was stopped. A particularly quick run was made to the lock.

BINGHAM QUITS THE CONGRESSIONAL RACE

New Castle Man Withdraws as Candidate for Republican Nomination—Dr. Temple and John Elliott Will Fight it Out

Frank Bingham of New Castle, formerly announced his withdrawal from the race for the Republican nomination for congress in the Twenty-fourth district Wednesday. The announcement when made public created a mild sensation as the action came entirely unexpected.

It is generally understood that Mr. Bingham will throw his support at the primaries to Hon. John A. Elliott of Beaver Falls, against Dr. Henry W. Temple of Washington, the only two candidates remaining in the fight.

Dr. Temple was in New Castle.

Mr. Bingham's announcement follows:

To the Voters of the Twenty-fourth Congressional District:

It is with regret that owing to the presence of my official duties as well as other business matters that have seriously interfered with my making an active campaign such as I had hoped to make the time now being too short and my condition of health being such that it does not warrant a further active campaign, I find it advisable to withdraw as a candidate for congress I shall not forget the many friends who tendered me their support. The district should be represented by a Republican and whatever influence I may have will be given cheerfully to that end.

AGED MONONGAHELIAN IS A HAPPY CITIZEN

J. W. Stephens, 92 Years Old, Can Remember When First Steamboat Went up Monongahela River—Was Born in the Year 1823

Well and strong at the age of 92 years J. W. Stephens of Monongahela, the second oldest man in the town, is just naturally one of its happiest citizens. Mr. Stephens has always enjoyed the very best of health and takes more pleasure out of life than many persons who are in its prime. Though born in Forward township, Allegheny county Mr. Stephens has lived in Washington county since six years of age and is of the firm belief that nothing more healthful than Washington county air could be breathed.

His memory is keen. He saw the first boat that ever went up the Monongahela river make the trip 86 years ago when he was at the tender age of six. He does not remember the name of the boat but can describe the scene accurately.

He was born near Elizabeth in 1823. Upon coming to Washington county Mr. Stephens went to reside at Bentleyville. After some years he married Miss Martha Bentley, of that place. His wife died in 1895. In 1862 he was appointed by Governor Curtin as draft commissioner of that capacity for two years. He has lived in Monongahela for the past 20 years.

Mr. Stephens has four sons, Dr. Franklin M. Stephens of New York city and William P. Henry E. and Charles E. Stephens of Monongahela.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kimmins have returned home from Atlantic City and Philadelphia where they spent their honeymoon having been married in Philadelphia August 18.

FOREIGNERS WITH DOGS SORELY TRIED BY EFFECT OF NEW LAW

BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD THROUGH THE MIDDLE WEST

So Declares Roy Feltus, Press Agent With the Barnum and Bailey Shows —Small Towns the Best.

Business conditions are good in the middle west according to Roy Feltus a press representative of the Barnum and Bailey shows, who was here Wednesday arranging the advertising for the shows. The Barnum and Bailey shows are now on their trip through the middle Atlantic states after a tour through the middle west.

"Take the small towns for instance," said Mr. Feltus, "and you find them showing every evidence of prosperity. This is especially true of those in the farming communities. So far as the shows I represent are concerned we are this year doing far better in the smaller communities than in the large cities. What has bothered us most has been the excessive rain. Still we have experienced a good season thus far."

Complain Not Only of Taxes But of the Cost Now of Killing Them

BOROUGH ADOPTS NEW PLAN

Agrees to Dispose of Canines if Brought to Police Station—Dog Population to Suffer Severely Through Operation of Law.

Foreigners who own dogs and who have paid their dog taxes have been somewhat in a quandry since the new law prohibiting ownership by unnaturalized persons went into effect. They have been puzzling as to what recourse to take in order to save themselves further expenditure of money but have been saved further worry by the borough coming to their aid.

The law did not go into effect until after the dog taxes for this year were mostly paid. Its provisions meant that foreigners with dogs had to dispose of them in some way. This in turn signified that there would have to be a number killed. The foreigners now complain they not only were forced to pay the taxes in the first place, but that they are being forced to pay for having their dogs killed now.

The borough cannot return the dog tax money that already has been paid, so the next best thing is being done, which is to dispose of the dogs. Foreigners are told to bring their dogs to the police station and the borough will look after their disposition. As a result of the operation of the law the dog population of Charleroi will suffer severely.

WAR AND HOBBLE SKIRTS

Warfare has vindicated the hobble skirt. The tight dress that made womenkind the world over walk with mincing steps has been hailed as a patriotic costume by no less an authority on such matters than the German Emperor.

In a recent semi-official warning the women of the Fatherland have been told to eschew the wide flaring skirt that fashion has decreed shall again come back to its own, says the Uniontown Herald. The German woman is advised that she should stick to the hobble and that if it was good in time of peace it is necessary in time of war.

Because the German government is going into the business of a modiste? Not at all. The reason is one of those peculiarly Germanesque ones—the narrow skirt saves material and the Government wants all its materials conserved during wartime. It is just another illustration of the attention that the Teuton gives to detail.

Not alone does the Fatherland demand the subject's gold. Not alone does the Empire ask for the subject's gold. Not alone does the Empire ask for the subject's copper kettles to be beaten into ammunition. Needs now must the Kaiser invade the field of fashion: Needs, too, must the Imperial ukase be given in favor of the hobble. To waste material on a wide skirt when a woman can wear a narrow one is unpatriotic, decrees the Kaiser's government. Hereafter, joke not about the hobble.

BOASTING A LITTLE

Newly improved streets, the number and beauty of new buildings, the excellence of the transportation system and general improvement of the surrounding are things that would naturally attract the visitor in Charleroi after a period of ten years' absence.

There have been numerous changes. Practically every street above McKean avenue has been bricked either in its entirety or in part and still others are now being improved. Numerous new homes have gone up and the building of business blocks has been carried on steadily within the last decade. Some of the down town streets which before were fronted by unsightly vacant lots used for nothing but temporary dumping grounds have been lined with imposing business blocks. Churches, club houses, school buildings and the new Federal edifice have been built, greatly enhancing the architectural beauty of the town.

No one doubts the excellence of the transportation system, and not a borough of city in the Monongahela valley and few if any in the country can in this respect surpass Charleroi with its important trolley connections and railroad service in all directions.

Along the line of general improvement much could be said. Street cut among other things has been the establishment of the playgrounds and bathing beach and the municipal gardens, just now closing their season. There is not the least shadow of a doubt about their immense benefit.

Charleroi is growing rapidly. It is becoming a residential community of the finest kind in the busiest industrial section of the world, and its class of citizens is steadily improving.

If a county or state fair can only be kept clean it is an educational institution of considerable merit, furnishing a stimulant to growers and providing good entertainment for the masses of country and city folk who seldom get to enjoy extended vacations. At Washington this week a show of questionable character was closed down. This method ought to be followed everywhere that a fair is held.

At the Washington fair judging of stock by boys and girls is a feature. That surely is one of the best ways to stimulate interest in the development of good stock.

Passenger service is contemplated over the Whitsett cut-off of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie road from Pittsburg to Baltimore, thus using the Monongahela valley route. Why not?

Among other careless pastimes of careless auto drivers is that of "brushing" past other machines. One tried to "brush" another on the Riverside road near Monessen, and some innocent folk were taken to the hospital.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Chairman Walsh of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations said at a recent luncheon in New York:

The men who control our greatest industries are the men most active in philanthropy and the work of social betterment. I know of some men whose fortunes were gained most unfairly; yet these men now in their plutocratic age, do a lot of good.

"It's a queer world," continued Mr. Walsh, "and I think a good many of us set out on our careers with the ideas of little Willie.

"'I'm going to be a pirate,' he answered, 'til I get old and infirm and then I'm goin' to turn to the Lord.'" —Boston Record.

A little girl gave a children's party the other day to certain of her young friends. She was very anxious that everything should be done properly, and just before the arrival of the guests was discussing matters with her mother.

"Mamma," she asked, "shall we say grace?"

"No," said mamma; "it will be a very informal dinner and I think you need not do that."

That meant one ceremony the less to be gone through with and was a relief. But the little lady was anxious to have all her guests understand it. So, as they gathered about the table she explained:

"'Mamma says that this is such an infernal dinner that we need not have grace today!'"

CANT LOSE HAIR

Twenty Years from Today a Baldheaded Man will be an Unusual Sight

One of the most prominent druggists of America made a statement a few weeks ago which has caused a great deal of discussion among scientists in the medical press.

He said: "If the new hair grower, Mildredina Hair Remedy, increases its sales as it has during the past year, it will be used by nearly every man, woman and child in America within eight years.

"When Mildredina Hair Remedy is used almost universally, dandruff will disappear and with its departure baldness, itching scalp, splitting hair and all scalp diseases will follow and twenty years from now a bald head will be a rarity." It takes a smart man to conceal his ignorance.

Luke McLuke Says:

There is quite a difference between a sixteen-year-old wife and a wife sixteen years old.

What has become of the old fashioned man who had to have a clove or coffee bean for a chaser?

After a fellow has roamed around the world for awhile he learns that the "Welcome" on a doormat means about as much as the "Excuse me" a man grunts when he wipes his feet on your new pants.

A man with a three days' growth of black whiskers isn't very beautiful. But he looks better than a woman who has about a quarter of an inch of white powder all over her face.

Any man would rather be an unpopular talker than a popular listener.

When mother has company and is putting on style she has a napkin on each plate at the table. And father will usually spoil everything by either forgetting to use his napkin or by saying, "Where did you get the napkins?"

What has become of the old fashioned man who used to help his wife to wash the dishes?

The only reason why there is a piano in a whole lot of homes is because a woman isn't going to give the neighbors a chance to think that they are any better than she is.

It takes the average married man about twenty years to realize that there is no place like home.

If every married man went home tonight at 8 o'clock and told his wife the truth, only the truth and nothing but the truth there would be a big wreath and a piece of crape on the door of almost every house in town.

The difference between children and grownups is that when children do not like you they do not pretend to.

BARNUM AND BAILEY SHOWS CONTAIN MANY SPLENDID NOVELTIES

The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on earth is announced for two performances in Charleroi Wednesday September 22.

The day is awaited with great interest. A new and brilliant street parade, a new menagerie and a large company of European artists are promised.

This circus has stood at the head of the amusement business for more than fifty years. The policy of P. T. Barnum and James A. Bailey is still active in its management. These are the two greatest names in the history of the world's circus affairs.

Nearly all great arenic novelties originate in Europe and Asia. No sooner have they been exploited in foreign audience rooms than they are secured by Barnum and Bailey's agents. Invariably novelties are introduced to America by this circus. When they cease to be novelties, they are passed down to other shows and another imported budget of wonders takes their places. This year's program is particularly abundant. It is a circus of all nations. Over 100 startling acts are presented by 480 of the leading artists of the world. The show employs 1,280 people. It has 700 horses. In its menagerie are 110 cages, pens, tanks and dens, in which are displayed 1,200 wild and semi-domestic animals. Among them are forty elephants and thirty camels.

The main performance is given in three rings, on four stages, on an immense hippodrome track and in a dome 400 feet long.

The circus has a newly built equipment. It was devised and executed in the foreign workshops of the show in England. Five long railroad trains are needed to haul it from city to city. It cost the management $3,500,000. With all these added improvements and expenses, the Barnum and Bailey show now stands in the zenith of glory. Never before in its history of splendid achievements has it been so attractive as now. It opened its spring engagement in Madison Square Garden, New York City, before the most distinguished audience that ever assembled in a circus arena. It made the biggest hit in all its career.

"BUCK" KENWORTHY IS NOT PITCHER, BUT MILLIONAIRE

Former P. O. M Twirler, Who is Known Here Retires When Rich Uncle Dies.

William "Buck" Kenworthy, former P. O. M. League pitcher whom many local fans will remember, is no longer a baseball player. He has left that class and will become a financier. He is the owner of $1,000,000 more or less.

"Buck" had an uncle who died leaving an estate of something like $50,000,000. His parents put in a claim for a portion, with the result that the five members of his family received $5,000,000. The division gave "Buck" $1,000,000 and he now considers that he needn't play baseball any longer.

He played in the Central League after the P. O. M. blew up. Later he went to Denver and in 1912 Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington Americans, secured his services. Griffith later sent him to Sacramento, but "Buck" jumped to the Federals. Since then he has been playing with the Kansas City Federals.

He received news of his inheritance last Saturday. On that day his team was playing the Pittsburg Federals, and it was in that game that he celebrated his good fortune with a home run. He thinks that the long hit was enough and a good ending and will now devote his attention to watching his money.

"Where is Miss Young?" asked Mrs Waring abruptly.

"Miss Young? I am afraid I don't know whom you mean."

"Miss Young is the nurse who has always attended me."

"Perhaps she was engaged on another case."

"No—my son sent for you, Miss Ewing?"

"Yes, he sent Adolph with the car."

"Did you ever meet my son before Miss Ewing?"

Sylvia's look of surprise was genuine.

"Why, no, Mrs Waring. Why do you ask such a question?"

Mrs Waring frowned.

"Because you are so pretty," she said, and remained silent.

Sylvia's thoughts were chaotic. Her position was growing disagreeable and she determined to speak to Richard Waring about it. The son of the house spent his days in town and his evenings, when his mother was unable to see him, were spent among his books in the library.

It was here that Sylvia found him that same evening.

"May I have a word with you, Mr Waring?" she asked timidly, for she was rather afraid of the handsome, reserved man.

"With pleasure, Miss Ewing," he returned cordially. He placed a deep chair for her in front of the fire and stood leaning with one elbow on the mantelpiece. "I'm so gratified that mother has made such progress under your care. Laidlaw thinks she may regain the use of her hand and arm."

"I am glad," said Sylvia, with a smiling flash of gray eyes. 'But I'm afraid, Mr. Waring, that your mother is not quite happy with me." A faint color flickered in her cheeks.

"Not happy with you?" he exclaimed. "That is absurd."

"She asks me why I came and she inquires for a 'Miss Young' who has always nursed her. May I ask, Mr. Waring, why you did not send for this Miss Young?"

Waring regarded her thoughtfully. Then a rueful smile overspread his face.

"To tell you the truth, Miss Ewing, I did send for her!"

"Why didn't she respond to your call?"

"I'll be hanged if I know! There, it's out, and perhaps you'll help me clear up the mystery. I sent Adolph after Miss Young and he came back with you! I supposed she had sent you as a substitute. I spoke to Doctor Laidlaw and he complimented your work, but he also said that Miss Young was idle. Then I put Adolph through the third degree—he declares that he went to 33 Cypress street—"

"Number 33 Cyclamen street!" interrupted Sylvia.

"Cyclamen street? Then he made a mistake in the street and the similarity of the names—Ewing and Young—added to his confusion. Our telephone was out of order that day, and I did not call her by that means. I am sure it was a happy mistake for us." He bowed courteously.

"I am afraid your mother does not think so," said Sylvia. "Under the circumstances I feel that I ought to yield my place to Miss Young. It is really her case."

"Please do not make any change; mother is whimsical and—I wonder if I may tell you the real reason why she prefers Miss Young?"

Sylvia caught her breath. She wished he would not look at her in that peculiar manner. It made her heart flutter uncomfortably.

"Pray be frank with me, Mr Waring," she managed to say.

With the long, curling lashes against the pink of her cheeks, the becoming white of her uniform, with its dainty cap perched in her red brown hair, Sylvia was indeed charming.

"My mother is a woman of prejudices," he began, "and when her brother, in his late middle age, succumbed to the charms of a really noble woman of your profession, my mother became very angry, and from that date she denounced all trained nurses as—you will pardon me, I am sure—sirens! She believed them to be designing, and with a grown son to protect from their wiles she uttered a decree that if sickness required a trained nurse in her house it must be one of such homely appearance that I would be quite out of danger!" He laughed ruefully, and Sylvia was forced to join in.

"So mother made a business of searching for a thoroughly reliable nurse, whom she might call in when sickness should overtake our family, and she finally discovered poor Miss Young, who is plain and middle aged and devoted to the memory of a long-deceased lover. She is a faithful soul and we are fond of her. So you see your coming here was to my mother a menace!"

"How absurd!" cried Sylvia. "But now I am convinced that my presence here could only worry her, and you must promise me you will send for Miss Young at once."

Sylvia flashed through the door and vanished up the stairs.

An hour later Miss Young appeared, tall, raw-boned, strong-visaged, a woman of kindly heart and skilled in her profession. Sylvia bade good by to Mrs. Waring with some relief. To her surprise the invalid pulled her face down close to her pillow.

"You are going, Miss Ewing," she whispered "but I feel sure that you will come back some day. I've watched you a long time and Richard has confessed to me, and if fate has ordained that he is to marry a trained nurse I'd rather it were you than anyone else in the world!"

Lady—You lazy tramp! Why are you not a son of toil?

Hobo—Because, lady, it is so much easier to be a son of soil.

"Well, I like your cheek!" exclaimed the indignant maid, after the young man had landed a kiss on her complexion.

"And I like yours," he rejoined. "But I imagine I would like your lips better."

Whereupon he planted another microbe breeder right under her nose.

Needed Sleep.

"Please give me the price to get into a moving-picture show?" pleaded the tramp to the man passing.

"But will you spend it to get to the movies?" asked the suspicious man.

"Indeed I will, sir. You see, since the cops have chased us off the park benches there's no other place we can go to sleep as cheap as the movies."

Pat's Solution.

"Plaze, sir," said an Irishman to a farmer going to market one day, "would yez be so obliging as to take me greatcoat here to B—wid ye?"

"Yes," said the farmer; "but how will you get it again?"

"Oh, that's mighty aisy, so it is," said Pat; "for shure I'll remain inside uv it!"—Tit-Bits.

It Certainly Would.

Fox Farms Fail.

Many failures in the new industry of fox farming in Alaska are recorded by E. Lester Jones, deputy commissioner of fisheries, in the report on his recent investigation in Alaska for the department of commerce. He finds that the promise of big profits caused many to rush into the business, and small fortunes were sunk by men who did not understand the difficulties of the industry.

The rush to raise foxes, the commissioner says, was due to the exorbitant prices paid for live black and silver-gray foxes raised in Canada. These prices, he declares, did not indicate a healthy condition in the industry. Nevertheless there was a rush to raise foxes in Alaska in the hope of reaping big profits quickly. One of the chief reasons for the large majority of failures, according to the commissioner, was the government's system of leasing certain islands to prospective fox farmers at a minimum of $200 a year for five years. The figure proved too high.

TIME FOR THE HEAVY MEAL

Frenchman Asserts That It Is Early in the Morning, But Some Differ With Him Radically.

The undisturbed if not heroic digestion which arises at the first clear note of the wood thrush, and, after the due process of orderly kitchen events, sits eager and appetent before a slice of fried ham, a dish of fried potatoes, a stack of wheats, a bowl of oatmeal, a platter of fried eggs, etc., is worthy of note these days.

Our nerve organization requires time for preparation to meet the daily exigencies. It has to be warmed up, and, like a baseball pitcher, cannot go cold to its work. It suggests to the appetite that a bit of fruit, a soft-boiled egg and a cup of coffee will represent sufficiency and kindness to the interior economy.

Therefore when a French man of wisdom, with seeming logic, says that the heavy work of digestion ought to be thrown upon the rested digestive organs and that consequently the "heavy meal" of the day ought to be eaten early in the morning, we reply that his theory is plausible, but in error. Digestive organs may be rested in the morning, but they are not ready to work, except in the case of the now-rare and always heroic digestions before mentioned.

Moreover the French man of wisdom is socially wrong. One may welcome the cheering presence of one's fellow man at six o'clock in the morning, but no lover of the human race wants to see his brother at six o'clock in the morning. The inalienable right of humanity at six o'clock in the morning is a grouch, a silent, comforting grouch, which only asks of humanity that if it cannot keep out of sight, at least it keep its mouth shut.

Eating is as much social diversion as it is stoking. As stoking it would become abhorrent and men would flee to thickets with their meat if eating were not also social. A dinner, properly considered, is the gentle fourth or fifth act of the day. The climax has been reached. The stress has been endured, the complications mastered, and the mind comes restfully to the services of the body.

If we are to have the "heavy meal" of the day set at five or six o'clock in the morning, it will be served to a generation which sits up all night.—Chicago Tribune.

How We Won Out

WE SAW THE PRIZE PRIZE AND GRABBED IT

Everybody in town knows that we are first in getting the best of everything. Last week we received a letter from Professor Munyon showing us a plan whereby he could rush his homoeopathetic remdies direct from his laboratory into our store without losing any of their curative properties. We saw the importance of this offer and immediately sent in our order for a full line of his remedies.

We want to say that if anyone bought the remedies and they were not perfectly satisfied with results, that we were to return the money. He says "I want you to specially push the Rheumatism Remedy in order that people may know. Find the hardest cases in town, those that Doctors have failed to cure, and get them to buy a 25c bottle, and if it doesn't relieve stiff and sore joints, pain in the back, side, or in any part of the body before one bottle has been used give the people back their money." This certainly must inspire confidence as everybody knows that Munyon's Homoeopathetic Remedies are absolutely harmless and millions of bottles are sold every year.

He also sent us a few hundred packages of his new Paw Paw Laxative Pills and wants us to give them away absolutely free. He says these Pills are the best stomach and liver regulator that the world has ever known. They don't scour, they don't gripe. They school the bowels to act naturally and take out of the system all the poisons and matter that irritates the nerves and causes biliousness, headache and general debility.

We are also to give away a four page sheet of music free to everybody who calls
